The seminar will cover preparing an application, writing an effective personal statement, gathering recommendation letters, choosing schools, and interviewing. Class time will be spent on group work, short lectures, and visits from admissions experts.

Grades will be based on in-class assignments, participation in interview exercises, and occasional out-of-class writing assignments, such as drafts of personal statements and professional school applications.

Students will direct their inquiry inward to identify strengths and areas for improvement, as they reflect on their readiness and motivation for a career in the health professions.

Tuesdays 2:30-4:20
Gould Hall Room 322

The seminar is open to anyone applying to graduate-level health professional schools, including but not limited to dentistry, medicine, occupational therapy, optometry, pharmacy, physician assistant, physical therapy, podiatry, and veterinary medicine.

Questions? Not sure if the seminar is right for you?
Learn more at: washington.edu/uaa/advising/prehealth/ or contact danpoux@uw.edu