Dr. Kamau Bobb is an engineer and STEM policy scholar. His work focuses on the relationship between equity for communities of color and the social and structural conditions of contemporary American life, in order to develop policies and programs that increase racial diversity in computing education.

Join us for an engaging conversation on how equity in computing will lead to positive outcomes for individuals, communities, corporations and our nation. Dinner will be provided.

Space is limited. RSVP required.

RSVP by April 30
bit.ly/mocmay2018